Kraft Foods today announced it will re-brand the iconic Kool-Aid Man mascot to the 'Kool-Aid Person' after facing pressure from left-wing groups.

The move comes after the company received a letter from the Human Rights Campaign (HRC) demanding that Kraft remove the mascot from its packaging.

Kraft Foods said in a statement that the change was made to ensure the mascot was inclusive and respectful to all.

The new mascot, the 'Kool-Aid Person', will be a more neutral figure that represents the brand's commitment to diversity.

What is this all about?!

I am going to work for a company that is this dumb?

Well that doesn't align with my values. I can't believe people support this. Virture signalling, self important ninnies.

What kind of idiots will I be working with?
